do not frequent church, and many of them have not communicated at the Lord's Supper since the beginning of the Queen's reign In many places the seminaries have lately offered disputations against the settled religion, but nothing is said to them

They that resort to church are so few that preachers who were determined to preach on Sundays and holy days refrain from lack of auditors , the people so swarm in the streets and alehouses during service time, that open markets are kept and in many churches only the curate and the clerk are present

Marriages and christenings are celebrated by seminary and other priests in corners, and in some parts children baptized according to law have afterwards been rebaptized by priests Divers mass priests, being apprehended, refuse to be examined npon oath as to where they frequent Alehouses are innumerable, and the law for suppressing and keeping them in order not executed, whereby toleration of drunkenness, unlawful games and other abuses follow Small or no reformation has followed the letters of the Council The recusants have spies about the Council to give intelligence when anything is intended against them so that they may shift out of the way and avoid being apprehended

RIOTING EXPECTED IN LONDON

The magistrates of the City of London and the suburbs are warned that certain apprentices and other idle people their adherents, the same that were the authors and partakers of the late disorder in Sou thwark, have a further purpose on Midsummer evening or night to renew their lewd assembly by colour of the time and to commit a breach of the peace or other foul outrage To prevent this mischief, a strong and substantial watch, sufficient to suppress any tumult, is to be kept both on Mid-summer evening, Midsummer night and Sunday night of house-holders and masters of families, to continue from the beginning of evening to the morning All masters of servants to be straightly charged, as they shall answer to their perils, to keep their servants in their houses for these two nights, and not to let them have any weapons if they be disposed to execute any evil purpose If, notwithstanding this strait charge, any servants, apprentices or suspected persons be found in the streets they
